Abstract : This publication is a product of the FAO Global Early Warning and System for Animal Genetic Resources. The system aims to prevent the erosion of animal genetic resources, and to encourage more effective management of genetic resources. The publication documents over 6300 mammalian and avian domestic animal populations and their wild relatives world-wide. The 4 sections of the publication are: (1) farm animal genetic resources, (2) farm animal genetic resources, (3) wild relatives of farm animals, and (4) wild relatives of farm animals.

livestock, and some suggestions for new domesticants, and (4) feral animal problems and potential. 600 pages of the publication are taken up by sections on critical, critical-maintained, endangered and endangered-maintained breeds, information and statistics on individual breeds, arranged by country.
