

Serial No.	130881
Title	World conqueror and world renouncer: a study of Buddhism and polity in Thailand against a historical background
Author	Tambiah, Stanley Jeyaraja
Date	1976.08.27
Pages	565
Publisher	Cambridge University Press (http://www.cambridge.org/)
Location	Cambridge, UK [,]
Mediatype	=Book
Language	=English
Library	SEARCH: NTU LIBRARY / MET@CAT
Compilation Date	2006.03.14
Note
Keyword	  =   =   =   = Primitive Buddhism = Early Buddhism
Abstract	World Conqueror and World Renouncer is the first comprehensive and authoritative work on the relationship between Buddhism and the polity (political organization) in Thailand. The book conveys the historical background necessary for full comprehension of the contemporary structural relationship between Buddhism, the sangha (monastic order), and the polity, including the historic institution of kingship. Professor Tambiah delineates the overall relationship, as postulated in early Buddhism, between the monk's otherworldly quest on one side and the this-worldly ordinating role of the monarchy on the other. He also examines the complementary and dialectical tensions that occur in this classical relationship, the king's duty to both protect and purify the sangha being a notable example.

ISBN/ISSN/ISRC	9780521211406