Abstract

This work is an inquiry into the creative pathways I have undertaken in my body of work, which interrogates issues of importance to me, as an author, writing within a fictional feature film script construct. Mindful of my own subject position, I believe that my body of my past and present work, have created an original theoretical body of screenplays. In wishing to create a positive lead role for myself, aside reservations about my origins as a non-Indigenous screenwriter, why I find it hard not to agree with Michel Foucault's supposition that "the affirmation that the author has disappeared" (Foucault 101).

The creative component of my thesis is a magic realist feature film script prequel to the two other enclosed film scripts largely written for the character, Pearl. Pearl carries the weight of my self-consciousness and simultaneously interrogate as I research theoretical issues of
