Green inheritance: the World Wildlife Fund book of Author(s) : Huxley, A.

Book : Green inheritance: the World Wildlife Fund book of plants. 1992 pp.195 pp

Abstract : This revised edition of the book first published in 1984 demonstrates ways that plants are of value to mankind and emphasizes the importance of conservation in the light of continuing destruction of their habitat. Following an introduction by David Attenborough, 11 chapters are included under the following headings: the green inheritance; guardians of the environment; green travel; bread; the spice of life; green wealth; green medicine; objects of beauty; plants improving the resources; and saving the plants that save us. Plant conservation programmes of the World Wildlife Fund and International Union for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources are outlined.
