Abstract

It's almost summer time, and the living seems so much easier than it does during the rest of the year. The pace changes, and so do our reading tastes. Summer is the time for refueling our engines, reaching for inspiration, and exploring the splendor of the wide world around us. In this column we offer a collection of books that seem perfectly suited to summer's schedule of traveling, spending time with family and friends, and honing our talents.

The following books were reviewed:

Taj Mahal by Caroline Arnold and Madeleine Comora, Ill. Rahal Bhaghan

An Egg Is Quiet by Dianna Aston, Ill. Sylvia Long

Vive La Paris by Esme Raji Codell

Julia's Kitchen by Brenda A. Ferber

Owen & Mzee: The true story of a remarkable friendship by Isabella Hatkoff, Craig Hatkoff, & Paula Kahumbu

Writing magic. Creating stories that fly by Gail Carson Levine

Wings by William Loizeaux. Ill. Leslie Bowman
