Sexual health: Medical doctor exposes the lies of sex education

Viewpoint

Issue 10 (Sep 2012)

Grossman, Mariam

Abstract: When I graduated from medical school, I took an oath to prevent disease whenever I could. At that moment, I believed the battles that lay ahead would be against cancer, heart disease and emotional disorders. But after two decades, and thousands of hours with young patients in distress, I have discovered my most challenging fight is not against dangerous diseases, but against dangerous ideas. I am referring to those ideas that are central to what I am going to call the sex education industry. This industry began in the US, and, like many ill-conceived notions from America, it has been successfully exported to the rest of the world.
