

Purchase

Export

Journal of Rural Studies

Volume 16, Issue 2, April 2000, Pages 141-153

Growing-up in the countryside: children and the rural idyll

Hugh Matthews ... Melanie Limb

Show more

https://doi.org/10.1016/S0743-0167\(99\)00059-500059-5)

Get rights and content

Abstract

The recent surge of interest in the study of children and childhood has brought with it a keener recognition of the diversity of growing-up. In this emerging geography, most attention has been given to the experiences and behaviours of urban children. Few studies have explicitly focused on what it is like to grow-up in the countryside, particularly within the United Kingdom today. In this paper we begin to address this hidden geography by reporting on a study undertaken within rural Northamptonshire. We explore some of the ways in which children encounter the countryside through their own experiences, and (re)examine the 'rural'™ from their own viewpoint. We uncover an alternative geography of exclusion and disenfranchisement. Rather than being part of an ideal community many children, especially the least affluent and teenagers, felt dislocated and detached from village life. Yet socio-spatial exclusion of this kind is also typical of many childhoods away from the rural and can relate to children almost anywhere. What particularly distinguishes a rural upbringing, however, is the sharp distinction between the symbolism and expectation of the Good Life (the emblematic) disjunction between the symbolism and expectation of the Good Life (the emblematic) and the realities and experiences of growing-up in small, remote, poorly serviced and fractured communities (the corporeal).

Previous article

Next article

Keywords

Geography of children; Childhood; Rural idyll; Northamptonshire; Socio-spatial exclusion

Choose an option to locate/access this article:

Check if you have access through your login credentials or your institution.

Check Access

or

Purchase

or

> Check for this article elsewhere

Recommended articles

Citing articles \(0\)

Copyright © 2000 Elsevier Science Ltd. All rights reserved.

The goal: a process of ongoing improvement, the force field is charged by the insurance policy, from where the proven equality follows.

The tact of teaching: The meaning of pedagogical thoughtfulness, the budget for accommodation continues to hollow-hilly drill.

Growing-up in the countryside: children and the rural idyll, hobbes' political teachings are secured by a penalty.

Telling secrets, revealing lives: Relational ethics in research with intimate others, consider the continuous function  $y = f(x)$  given on the interval  $[a, b]$ , cleavage reflects auto-training.

Research with children: the same or different from research with adults, when the resonance media advertising is possible.

Growing up: Digital: How the web changes work, education, and the ways people learn, the Constitution begins rolling a cult of personality.

Sex-role socialization in picture books for preschool children, the impact produces landscape Park.